

AFRICANA HISTORY CONCENTRATION

(15 credits)

The FAU Department of History offers a concentration in Africana History, which is particularly suited for majors with interest in this area. Courses in the concentration invite students to learn about the U.S. and global histories of Black peoples of African descent from the early modern period through the present. Upon completion of the track, students will have a deep understanding of this history, the great variety of Black peoples' historical experiences, and the ways in which this history was influenced by intersecting systems of power, such as race, sex and gender, colonialism, capitalism and economic class, systemic violence, policing, and education. Students will also be prepared to seek racial justice in today's society and to connect present-day social movements to the long history of movements for racial equality, equity, and justice. Upon graduation, students who fulfill the concentration's requirements will have it noted on their official university transcript. For more information, contact the Department of History at 561-297-3840 or visit fau.edu/history

CORE (both courses required)

- AMH 3571 African American History to 1877
- AMH 3572 African American History since 1877

ELECTIVE (3 from following list)

- AMH 4574 History of African American Women
- AMH 4575 Civil Rights Movement
- AMH 4451 Slavery and Abolition in the Americas
- AMH 3530 American Immigration and Ethnicity
- AMH 4620 American Sports History
- AFH 3512 History of the African Diaspora
- AFH 4930 Special Topics in African History
- LAH 4470 History of the Caribbean
- Any Senior Seminar, Special Topics, or 5000-level Graduate Readings course which focuses on Africana History